Dear Mark:

When the negotiations are concluded and a contract is signed the hope is that, at the conclusion of the job, all parties are happy. I am certain that is not the case in every situation, but CrossRoads Country Church is very happy with the process and the results of the construction of our new Worship Facility.

We have been impressed with the fact that Plains Builders not only honored the contract, but in many cases went beyond even the spirit of the contract. The construction meetings every two weeks were extremely helpful and informative. In addition to being informative, I believe that misunderstandings and potential areas of conflict were identified and dealt with before a problem existed.

The personnel of Plains Builders was more than helpful. Our superintendent, Ryan O'Brien, went beyond his scope of duty to make the construction process and the transition as easy as possible.

Mark, what I am trying to say on behalf of myself and the Congregation is that we have not felt that there was one thing left undone, and that no short-cuts were taken. We are pleased with the finished product. We thank God for His leadership in a rather lengthy process, and we pray that He will bless your company.

Sincerely yours,
Bob Miller, Pastor
